MEMPHIS, TENN.

Mr. Charles G. Locke, a one-armed Confederate soldier, is a candidate for County Register. That he is worthy and well qualified, no one will question. We hope that it is not to his disadvantage to state that he has been connected with the business department of this paper, in a confidential though not lucrative position, for a number of years, and that he is thoroughly competent and reliable. As a bookkeeper and accountant he is quite an expert, and writes a hand—with his left hand, at that—which would delight the attorneys who have to examine the Register's books. Having lived here all his life, he is well known, and it is no flattery to say that he is held in the highest esteem and respect by all who know him. We will simply add, to relieve him of any embarrassment, that he will not know anything of this little mention until he sees it in print.

Mr. George Dent.
This well known lawyer is again a candidate for the Attorney Generalship of the Bartlett Court. He was the Democratic nominee four years ago, and polled the full strength of the party, but went down with the rest in that ill starred campaign. He has lived here all his life, is a good lawyer, stands high in the community, and certainly has claims that are entitled to consideration.

The stone was to be furnished Mr. Fogarty, contractor on Beal street, by the city. He is out now, as several times before; hence is not to blame for the delay. A supply is promised by next Thursday.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Investigation Into Their Affairs
by the Special Grand Jury.

The special Grand Jury appointed by Judge Horrigan, to examine into the affairs of the various county officers, made a report this morning remarkable for its fullness and bulk. Printed in full, it would cover a paper as big as one side of the county courthouse, more or less. The following remarkable passage was noticed:

"We desire to direct especial attention to the report on Receiver Mr. Fether's office, showing the reckless and almost criminal carelessness on the part of the city officials, and certain courts, particularly the unjust and arbitrary rulings of Judge Baxter in the case of Meriwether vs. Garrett; also to the highly creditable manner in which Meriwether has conducted the office. We recommend that a committee be appointed to destroy all the evidences of indebtedness taken up by Meriwether and give him a proper certificate therefore."

The report also directs attention to the fact that $55,083.54 have been saved the county in the Criminal Court during one year, as shown by the books of the Criminal Clerk. The jury recommend that every county officer, upon retiring, furnish his successor with an exact statement of the affairs of his office and turn over any funds in his hands, and that said successor be required to give a bond sufficient to cover the same. Then the following: "The custom is for each retiring officer to take with him all books in his office, except original dockets and stub memorandums, also all the money he has on hand, and we have yet to hear of said moneys being returned. A great deal of the money goes into the hands of some of the officers that is never called for, and should be sent to the State or county. Your committee can see no reason why the immense public business of this county could not be kept and recorded in as systematic and perfect manner as the business of any commercial house, and yet it is far from it."

PERSONAL.

Charles G. Locke is a candidate for County Register, subject to the nomination of the Democratic convention. Mrs. P. E. Hopkins and daughters left yesterday by steamer Guiding Star for Cincinnati, on their way to New York.

Mr. William M. Ransom, an old resident of Memphis, is back, after an absence of several years, and will remain several days.

James M. Willford, a large and successful planter from the neighborly county of Crittenden, Arkansas, is in the city on a business visit.

He was cordially greeted by his many warm friends, who could hardly recognize in the mien of the modest and unostentatious civilian the gallant and daring soldier, who looked death in the face through the blazing batteries at Franklin, in defense of the cause of the fallen banner.

Mrs. H. G. Hollenberg has returned from a visit to Louisville, with her son Tannen, one of our Memphis boys who distinguished himself by carrying off the gold medal in mathematics at the Kentucky Military Institute.

Dr. Perkins.

Dr. Sawt. Perkins, after faithfully and honorably filling the office of Criminal Court Clerk for one term, was a candidate for re-election four years ago. He went before the Democratic county convention, was nominated, and made the race, but was defeated along with the rest of the ticket. Many of his friends have expressed a desire to see him have another chance, and it is certainly reasonable and proper. Therefore it is understood that his name will be presented before the convention which meets next Thursday. He is a good citizen, filled the office satisfactorily before, and will certainly develop strength if his name is used in the convention.

What Fertilizing Will Do.

Some months ago Mr. R. J. Rawlings, of this city, had a discussion with his brother as to the value of fertilizers, the former contending that uplands could be fertilized so as to produce as much as bottoms. The latter ridiculed the idea. Mr. Rawlings went to work to demonstrate his theory. He selected an acre of worn-out land within the corporate limits of the Taxing District, fertilizing it with sweepings from a cotton seed oil mill. About one ton was used, at a cost of about $5—the cost of hauling, in fact—and now behold the result. He has a splendid stand of cotton, which promises to yield at least a bale and a half of cotton. Fertilizing pays, and the people outside of the bottoms will have to come to it sooner or later.

A Brutal Negro Husband.

CINCINNATI, July 2.—A Little Rock (Ark.) special says: News of a tragedy in Cross county, just received, states that a negro named Aaron Jones, living near Wittsburg, started for the railroad station, some miles distant, accompanied by his wife. At a lonely spot they quarreled. He struck her on the head with a slung shot, then cut her throat and escaped. She recovered sufficiently to crawl to the house of Colonel N. P. Johnson, tell her story and then died. The murderer has not yet been arrested.

The Missing Prouse.

St. Louis, July 3.—A special from Carlinville, Ill., says: Norman Prouse, of Elgin, a farmer, who was the central figure in the recent throat-cutting sensation at Sedalia, escaped from the officers who had him in charge by jumping from a Chicago & Alton passenger train, last night, at this point. The alarm was not given until the train reached Nilwood. Prouse had his throat tied up with a handkerchief to cover his wounds. As yet no traces have been found of him, except that he was seen in a wagon going west. The Sheriff of Sunderland county received a telegram to-day from the Chief of Police of Elgin to arrest Prouse, if possible, as he was wanted for murder, as later developments, it is alleged, shows that Prouse poisoned his own child just before leaving for Sedalia. The greatest excitement prevails at Elgin, and every effort will be made to arrest Prouse.

Accounting for a Deficiency.

Exchange.
At the end of the year, when an Ohio bank cashier could not make his books balance, the President sat down with him and said:
"Mr. Symonds, it is evident that you have made a clerical error some where."
"But I have verified my figures over and over again," protested the cashier.
"Just so, but yet you have overlooked the error. According to your books this bank is $700.22 short!"
"Yes, sir."

"And according to my private memoranda you are a $400 trotting horse and a $300 diamond pin ahead; while the rats probably ate up the 22 cents. Please correct the error and furnish a clean balance sheet."

Mr. Symonds isn't a bank cashier any more. His health was so bad he had to have outdoor employment.

Tennessee Bonds.

New York Banker and Broker, 29.
It is reported that over $2,000,000 of Tennessee bonds have been turned in and receipts taken in exchange; about 1000 bonds have been finished and Governor Hawkins is expected here this week to sign them. We do not care to discourage the creditors of the State of Tennessee, nor to reflect upon the honor of the people of that State, but the evidence before us does not encourage us to believe that the debt will be funded under the compromise bill recently passed by the legislature, and it looks to us as if the refunding operations now going on were useless labor.

General Grant's Rescue.

General Grant, who was in the smoking car of the wrecked train near Long Branch last Thursday, was promptly helped through a window to a place of safety by Fireman Foster, with a slight scratch at the knee, minus his hat, but with his cigar still lighted, as imperturbable as though enjoying a quiet smoke on the veranda of his cottage. He took an active part in the work of rescuing his less fortunate fellow passengers, and with characteristic coolness directed the railroad hands as to the quickest and most feasible methods of getting the people out of the wreck.

A Woman's Perils.

A woman's Perils, or Driven from Home, by Mrs. Jane C. Cook, just published by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, is written in clear, breezy language, and displaying a wealth of exciting incidents. The plot is ingenious and absorbing, being conceived and unfolded with surpassing skill. It treats of the misfortunes of a beautiful woman, whose husband joined the Lopez Expedition to Cuba and disappeared. How the tangled threads are finally straightened out and the long suffering made happy will be discovered by a perusal of the novel. Many of the scenes are of great intensity, and those in which little Willie Gordon and the Morton children are the principal figures are particularly bright.

humorous and agreeable. There is a delicious episode introduced in the shape of the wooing of sprightly Kate Sherwood by William Leiland, and fashionable society in the South is vividly and forcibly sketched. Just enough of the sensational element is used to give the tale a piquant flavor of adventure and romance, but probability is constantly kept in view. The personages of the story are all admirably drawn.

MARRIAGE GUILDS.

Treasurer Polk Makes a Remarkable Discovery.

Which is All Smoke and No Fire.

Nashville Banner, 2.
The State Treasurer yesterday issued the following circular letter to all the District Attorney Generals of the State:

OFFICE OF THE TREASURER OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE, NASHVILLE, July 1.—Dear Sir: I am directed by the Attorney General of the State to call your attention to the fact that the various insurance companies, organized under the laws of this State, whether organized or incorporated under the laws of this State or not, are acting in open violation of the law. He directs me to call your attention to the acts of 1875, chapter 103, pages 192 to 199, and to require you to proceed at once against all such companies, organizations, corporations or partnerships and their agents wherever to be found within your district. Respectfully,
M. T. POLK,
Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner.

A Banner reporter, yesterday afternoon, took a copy of the letter written by State Treasurer Polk and visited several of the leading attorneys of the city, to whom it was submitted. The first one approached said he was very positive in his mind that all matrimonial associations in the State were operating contrary to law, that they are not guilty of any direct violation of law, but they do come within the strict letter of the law. He said in the event one of them were to suspend the projectors could be held liable to the members of the association for the amounts paid in by them in the way of dues and assessments.

The next approached, a judge of one of the courts, said there was nothing in Mr. Polk's letter, and the Attorney Generals would probably pay no attention to it. If he understood it, the matrimonial associations were private partnerships; mutual benefit, and not organized insurance companies. While he did not believe they came within the strict letter of the law he was satisfied that any body of men had the right to operate for each other's benefit.

The next one seen said he had been satisfied all along that the organizations known as nuptial associations were illegal concerns, but he knew of no law to make them desist. They were not insurance companies, but a nuptial benefit association, and certainly there was no law to prevent the operation of such organizations. He said, if he understood their plan of operation, they did not contract to pay any specified amount to the members who married, but agreed to pay them the entire amount of the assessment of all the members. He believed there was one company that agreed to pay the full amount of policies, but this company had a reserve fund, created by deducting ten per cent of the amount paid.

Attorney General Washington said he thought Mr. Polk's letter was exactly right. Nuptial associations were illegal organizations. Some of them were offered by responsible men and would do all they agreed to, but at the same time they were operating contrary to law.

Another attorney said that if he understood it, these nuptial unions and nuptial leagues were chartered under an act of 1875. They were private co-partnerships, and not regularly organized insurance companies. Their object was to save to their members certain sums of money, or so much thereof as might be collected by assessments, in the event they married not earlier than a specified time. He did not see how the law could reach them, although he was aware they did not come within the strict letter of the law.

When it became known yesterday that Mr. Polk's letter had been written, hundreds of young men who hold policies in these companies, both in Tennessee and other Southern States, became somewhat alarmed, and many of them sought legal advice. In nearly every instance they were told that there was no serious cause for alarm, as many of the associations were operated by responsible men and the amounts of their dues and assessments could in any emergency be recovered from them.

The lawyer said the associations would go right along as they have been, regardless of the threatening letter of Mr. Polk. He said in a few months the people might look out for a "burst up" in many of the less responsible ones, but the solid companies would continue in business and discharge their obligations to the letter.

Business Holidays.

New York Sun.
The Produce Exchange has voted to adjourn from Saturday, July 1, until Wednesday, July 5. The Cotton Exchange goes further, deciding to re-assemble on Thursday, July 6. Holidays have fallen conveniently this year for the purpose of extending them. The New Year came in on Sunday, and was celebrated the day after, thus securing two consecutive days; the same thing had happened the week before, at Christmas, Easter Monday was more generally observed than usual this year, and Decoration

Day came on the Tuesday after Whit-Sunday, so that many people managed to put in a three days' vacation at that time. Now the occurrence of the Fourth of July on Tuesday will give another chance for a three days' holiday.

Journalistic.

Nashville American.
A number of citizens of Maury county have purchased the Independent, published at Columbia, and have changed its title to the Maury Democrat, and hoisted the name of General Wm. B. Bates, of Davidson, for Governor. The paper is owned by the People's Publishing Company, and is edited by Hon. J. Lee Bullock and Major J. T. Williamson, two as staunch, true and unwavering Democrats as ever lived. Mr. Bullock, a member of the legal fraternity, is a man of experience, ability and influence. He has represented his county in the General Assembly and has filled other offices of honor and trust. Major Williamson, his associate, is also a member of the bar and stands high in his profession. He has been for several years past chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Maury. These two gentlemen have always been for State credit and in the canvass of 1880 both did gallant service. We predict the Democrat under this management will at once take foremost rank in the weekly journalism of the South.
